

CollectiveOne

Introduction

A CollectiveOne is a new form of open collaborative project, a form of project that promotes:

Open collaboration

Contribution recognition

Contribution value

Liquid ownership

Collective decisions

Open data

www.collectiveone.org is a platform to create and grow open projects

Problem → Current Companies

Fail at motivating talented people to realize themselves to their full potential

Add an overwhelming overhead to economic production

Solution → Open collaborative projects

Open projects which are pushed forward by the combination of individual contributions

Without entry barriers created by hiring processes and memberships, anyone willing to contribute can, potentially, do so

Dismantle the intricate structures needed to protect knowledge by making all their information public

Provide a decentralized decision making mechanism to let project contributors to make efficient collective decisions

... and, at the same time, allow projects to be efficient and successful, and individual contributions to be recognized and valued

Solution → CollectiveOne

Push the project forward by identifying contribution items (like gigs) and let anyone bid to perform these in exchange of project-specific participation points such that

- the more you contribute, the more you own
- the more you contribute, the more power you have within the project

Decentralized governance: Project decisions are taken openly by any participant, as long as it doesn't find opposition from the rest

In disagreement, the platform provides an automatic decision mechanism which accounts for participation points to promptly reach a verdict

Product → www.collectiveone.org for voting "Yes" new

Our chances might be low due to our low traction (number of users and projects), but there might be a chance anyway.
